

SMOOT SAYS FARMERS ARE BEING DECEIVED

SENATOR FROM UTAH DECLARES FARMERS ARE LOSERS UNDER AGRICULTURAL SCHEDULE.

MORE TARIFF DEBATE

Free Beef Means Concentration of Business in Hands of Beef Barons, Is His Charge—Other Discussion.

Washington, July 22.—Senator Smoot today resumed his argument against the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill. He discussed first the agricultural schedule.

"The provision of the house bill," he said, "to admit meat, hides, wool, etc. free while imposing a duty on cattle and certain other livestock were so clearly an attempt to deceive the farmers that the majority party in the senate is to be congratulated for seeking to make the provisions more consistent. In doing this they have, however, added to the injury already provided for by the house and instead of making meat, etc., dutiable, have now added livestock to the free list."

"With meat free it will help concentrate the control of those products in the hands of what are known as the beef barons and will help kill off small dealers and throw the competition. The expense of feeding and the shrinkage of profit are eliminated in transshipping beef. Hence a large corporation with facilities for importing dressed beef can save a good deal in labor, feeding, etc. Where no duty is imposed it will be a discrimination against the farmer and others in this country."

"But if meat, etc., is to be admitted free, it is better that the protection should be done away with and livestock also allowed to come in free. Eighty-five percent of the corn raised in this country is used for livestock. The importation of meat and of live cattle will be a tremendous advantage to Canada, Mexico, Argentina and other such countries at the expense of the American producer. It will strengthen the grip of the large packer and will not only probably reduce the cost of meat to the consumer."

Senate democrats declared today that few set tariff speeches would come from the floor of the chamber. Senator Gallinger, leader of the republicans, was in difficulty finding republican senators ready to appear in opposition to the bill following Senator Smoot.

"We are not going to take up time debating this bill," said Chairman Simmons of the finance committee. "If the bill proves not to be for the benefit of the country, it will demonstrate that our ideas of the tariff are wrong. If it proves to be for the country, it will demonstrate that the opposition is wrong. That is all there is to this proposition and we are ready and anxious now to pass the bill. It is going to pass."

SECRETARIES AWAY; NO CABINET MEETING

President Wilson Denies Himself To Callers and Devotes Himself To Tangles in Diplomacy

Washington, July 22.—The regular cabinet meeting slated for today was not held because at the last moment it was discovered that most of the secretaries were away from the city. President Wilson denied himself to callers and remained in his study taking up state department reports and papers on the Mexican situation and considering the proposed Nicaragua treaty.

Changes in the plans of Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson now hurrying north from Mexico City, so that he can continue from Havana to New York by sea instead of land at New West and proceeding by rail to Washington, as expected to make a day's difference in the time of the ambassador's arrival.

The conference at which Mr. Wilson is to lay before the president and Secretary Bryan's first hand report of the situation in Mexico upon which some important developments may be expected probably will not take place before Saturday. Features of the situation so far as the United States is concerned seems to be unchanged.

Among them are many officials who have retired from their posts, carrying with them millions of dollars in silver and paper money.

ASK APPROPRIATION FOR FAIR BUILDING

Sums Aggregating $490,000 Requested By Board Before Joint Finance Committee Yesterday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., July 22.—Appropriations aggregating $490,000 for buildings and improvements on the state fair grounds were urged by board members before the joint finance committee yesterday afternoon.

The principal argument was by Ira M. J. Shryver of Hudson. Others who appeared were D. W. Larkin of Sturgeon Bay, secretary of the fair, and Prof. Bascom, who has made a partial survey of the grounds, and Dr. H. E. Dearholt, who pleaded for liberal appropriations for better sanitary conditions.

The needs of the fair were outlined by Mr. Shryver. Among these he enumerated a complete new grandstand of indestructible character, which may be utilized below for exhibition purposes, and the building of adequate dimensions, new fencing around the grounds to supersede the dilapidated fences now permitted, and new buildings for various departments and exhibits.

Mr. Shryver declared the board expected Milwaukee county to keep its promises respecting the donation of additional lands.

"We believe it is going to do so," he said, "it has good cause to expect the state of Wisconsin to do its part."

On the subject of criticisms of relative small attendance, Mr. Shryver said:

"I see no reason for the argument that the people of Wisconsin don't patronize the fair. In comparison with the exhibits at the Minnesota fair, our displays on the quality side are just as good, if not better."

Assemblyman Sporck came back with the statement that eighteen state fairs, including Tennessee's and others of like standing, exceed Wisconsin in attendance.

Secretary MacKenzie noted that Wisconsin allowed about 2,000 complimentary tickets. He said most of the newspapers get one.

"Why should the newspapers get comps?" he asked Sporck.

"Because they give us the bulk of our publicity," replied Secretary MacKenzie.

"But they get paid for it, don't they?" inquired Sporck.

"Not very much, I am sorry to say," said the secretary.

Dr. Dearholt advocated abandonment of the septic tanks on the west side of the fair grounds, and a connection with the city water system in place of the old well on the grounds, which leads to unsanitary conditions. Prof. Bascom said it would take from $15,000 to $20,000 to construct the sewer and water improvements contemplated.

Dr. Dearholt believed the board should make provisions for educating parents in health matters, particularly in respect to the raising of babies.

MAY DENY LAWYERS RIGHT TO QUESTION

Attorneys For National Association of Manufacturers May Not Cross-Examine Martin M. Mulhall.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, July 22.—Attorneys for the National Association of Manufacturers may not be permitted to cross-examine Martin M. Mulhall, confessed lobbyist, before the senate investigating committee when Attorney Robert McCarter for the manufacturers today suggested cross-examination of Mulhall on his story that former Representative James E. Watson of Indiana had been paid a retainer fee of $500 and a weekly salary of $250 to lobby for the passage of a tariff commission bill and a promise of an additional $10,000 if the bill were successful. Senator Reed of the committee's leading questioner declared himself against cross-examination but proposed that questions be submitted to the committee. The point was not finally decided. Mulhall today swore that he drew $500 from the Baltimore bank to be paid to Watson.

Mulhall also swore that Watson had made the office of James A. Emery here his headquarters after he had been defeated for governor of Indiana in 1890. Emery Mulhall swore he was the lobbyist for the manufacturers. The witness declared today that former Senator Hemenway of Indiana, occupied rooms next to Emery's and that Watson was in one office or the other much of the time.

Mulhall, the lobbyist witness before the senate committee today retracted his charges that former Representative Watson of Indiana was employed by present interests while a member of congress, to work for a tariff commission bill. Mulhall said he "was mistaken."

"I want to correct a statement I made about Watson," said Mulhall. "He did not get the money before he left congress, but afterwards. I was mistaken about the date."

The committee did not question him further.

OLD TIME PITCHER IS REPORTED INSANE

"Wee Willie" Sudhoff, Old Star for St. Louis Browns, Reported to Have Gone Insane—Declares He Was Beaten in 1905.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
St. Louis, Mo., July 22.—"Wee Willie" Sudhoff, one time star pitcher of the St. Louis Browns is reported to be violently insane in the observation ward of the city hospital. The police removed him from his home to the hospital last night.

Physicians who examined him declared today that his present mental condition was due to a severe injury to the head which he sustained while playing with St. Louis in 1905.

Sudhoff's mania takes the form of trying to divest himself of all his clothing which is regarded by his former associates as a strange reversal of a whim which he had after being injured in a railroad wreck, while traveling with the Browns to Cleveland. In 1904 President Hedges of the Browns sold today that never after that wreck would Sudhoff wear a hat.

In 1903 Sudhoff was in his prime as a pitcher. He retired at the end of the season of 1905 and went into the clothing business. For the past three years he has worked as an odd job at one of the water works stations. He is 38 years old and married. It was at the request of his wife that he was taken to the hospital.

WIDOWS RECONCILED TO LIVE TOGETHER

Two Women Left by W. E. Frost of La Crosse, Will Live Together in Friendship.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
La Crosse, July 22.—A sequel to the exposure of the double life of Wilfred B. Frost, which came out at the time of his death in a Chicago hospital on February 28th, came today when the Chicago widow of Frost came to La Crosse to make a reconciliation with the La Crosse widow and left with her and the latter's children for Chicago, the two women agreeing to make their home together for the rest of their lives.

At Chicago Frost had a wife and two children, a son of 21 and a daughter of 19. At La Crosse where he was known as Dr. Wilfred B. Montclair he had a wife and two boys of three and two years. Until his death, Frost was in ignorance of the existence of the other and Frost or Montclair was considered a model husband and father whose business took him away from home effected a reconciliation with the La Crosse widow.

After reflection the Chicago widow decided to what she could to repair her husband's offense by taking care of the La Crosse widow and her children. The younger woman was persuaded to accompany the older to Chicago where she was promised a good home and the proper bring up for the little ones, and the heart broken woman left for that city last night.

THIRTY-FIVE NEGRO CONVICTS CREMATED IN BURNING PRISON

Prisoners Burned Frantically at Bars Over Windows of Jail Near Jackson, Mississippi.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Trapped by flames in the second floor of an antiquated convict cage, thirty-five negro prisoners were burned to death at the Oakley convict farm, twenty miles from here late last night.

Rescuers Driven Back. While the flames ate away the only stairway leading to the second floor the prisoners frantically tore at the heavy bars that covered the jail windows but to no avail. Their screams brought guards and other prison attendants, but the flames drove back the members of the rescue party each time they attempted to liberate the negroes who one by one fell into the flames and perished.

The building, constructed ten years ago of lumber taken from a discarded penitentiary. There was no fire fighting apparatus at the farm and the first floor of the building was filled with inflammable matter. Farmers living near by hurried to the jail to help the fire fighters, but the fire burned so rapidly they were unable to stop it.

ARGENTINE WARSHIP TO BE GIVEN TRIAL

First Dreadnought to Be Built in America for a Foreign Nation Ready for First Tests.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Boston, Mass., July 22.—When the Argentine dreadnought Rivadavia leaves Quincy next week for the Brooklyn Navy yards, there to be cleaned and refitted preparatory to her final trials for speed and other acceptance tests, she will at once engross the undivided attention of naval men.

Interest in the Rivadavia lies chiefly in the fact that she is the first ship, the Morena, under construction at Camden, N. J., are the first so-called dreadnoughts to be built in the United States for a foreign country. When three years ago, the Fore River Shipbuilding Company and the New York Shipbuilding Company received the contracts for building the Rivadavia and the Morena, respectively, the shipbuilders of the United States won their first important victory in bidding for the construction of warships in competition with representatives of the leading nations of the world.

By courtesy of the Navy Department the Rivadavia will be dry-docked at the Brooklyn Navy Yard and put in shape for her final speed trials. It is expected these trials will take place off the Maine coast week after next. The ship is required by contract to make at least 22 1/2 knots an hour and to maintain a total displacement of 7,500 tons, is 585 feet long, 98 feet in breadth and has a normal draught of 27.6 feet. Externally she resembles vessels of the class of which the United States battleship Arkansas is a type.

The batteries of the Argentine dreadnought will consist of twelve 12-inch guns, which constitute the main battery; twelve 6-inch, six of which can be fired broadside at the same time; the main battery fired; twelve 4-inch guns, besides several guns of smaller calibre, and two 21-inch submerged torpedo tubes.

CARDINAL GIBBONS AT EIGHTIETH YEAR

Head of Catholic Clergy in United States Has Had a Remarkable Record.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Baltimore, Md., July 22.—Cardinal Gibbons will enter upon his eightieth year tomorrow, having been born July 23, 1834. His eminence was ordained in 1861 and began his priestly labors as curate at St. Patrick's Church, Baltimore. Six weeks later he was appointed pastor of a church at Locust Point. This was his only experience as pastor. Those were trying days for the young priest, the first days of the civil war, but he performed his duty faithfully and regularly. He served as chaplain of Fort McHenry, which was then used not only as a fort, but also as a prison for Confederates. As a result of his good work he was appointed four years later, secretary to Archbishop Spalding of Baltimore. Thereafterward honors and promotions came to him rapidly. In 1888 he was consecrated bishop of Adirondack. Four years later he was transferred from his post to the diocese of Richmond. In May, 1877, he became coadjutor archbishop of Baltimore and a few months later he succeeded to the see. In 1886 he was created cardinal.

Cardinal Gibbons occupies a unique position in the city and state, with which he has been identified for so many years, and he has long been recognized as one of the foremost Americans. He is doubtless one of the citizens of the United States who has exerted such a strong influence abroad as he. To mention his name anywhere in America or Europe evokes tributes which come equally from Protestants and Catholics.

That he is held high in the esteem, not only of the Catholic clergy and laity, but also those of other denominations, is shown by the many congratulatory messages which are being received at the archbishop's residence in anticipation of his birthday. They express the hope that he will live to see many more celebrations of his anniversary.

The cardinal continues to live a busy life, despite his advanced age and is in good health. His vitality has caused expressions of amazement and his vigor is attributed to his systematic method of living. In addition to carrying on the work of his high office regularly, he has found time for the performance of many ceremonies and to assist in the honor of priests and sisters, first masses of young priests, weddings and other exercises. He has found time for the performance of many ceremonies and to assist in the honor of priests and sisters, first masses of young priests, weddings and other exercises.

HUSBAND BETRAYED BY WIFE'S JEALOUSY

New Orleans Man Arrested in Chicago for Theft of $3,700 Worth of Goods.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, July 22.—How a wife's jealousy caused her to supply information which led to her husband's betrayal to the police, was revealed today when Detective Charles P. Mellen of New Orleans left Chicago for the southern city with James A. Zatarain, 32 years old, who was wanted on a larceny charge involving $3,700. He was arrested here yesterday. Zatarain formerly owned a tailor shop in New Orleans and succeeded in having $3,700 worth of clothing from a Chicago firm paying for it by gaining the confidence of an employee of an express company. The goods had been shipped to C. O. D. but Zatarain is said to have induced the express man to deliver them without collecting the amount due. Later he disappeared, but was afterwards seen in New Orleans in company with the woman he had married. The wife traced the couple to Chicago, notified the police and his arrest followed.

State Legislature Refuses to Vote Relief to One Thousand Wisconsin Saloon-keepers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, July 22.—Relief for about one thousand saloon-keepers in Wisconsin whose licenses were illegally refused by the legislature today when the assembly voted not to receive a bill by Assemblyman Walsh of Milwaukee which would validate them. The vote was 50 in favor and 100 against the bill to 35 against, but a two-thirds affirmative vote was necessary. Fifteen members were absent. Assemblyman Heading of Milwaukee then introduced a bill seeking to validate the licenses of three saloons. The assembly refused to receive this bill by a vote of 50 to 25.

The assembly voted to return to the senate the Axel Johnson bill making it easier to grant licenses on the ballot. This is the bill which Governor McGovern desired revised and passed. A senate amendment to the Peavy bill reorganizing the administration was also passed. A health vote concerning and in part now goes to the governor. The assembly recessed until 2 o'clock.

IS FIFTH GOVERNOR NAMED WITHIN YEAR

Democratic Candidate in Arkansas Is Conceded Victory in Gubernatorial Contest.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Little Rock, Ark., July 22.—The state campaign in Arkansas closed today. Tomorrow the voters will select a governor to succeed J. M. Felt, who has been filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Governor Joseph T. Robinson, now United States senator.

The Democratic candidate for the governorship is Judge George W. Hays of Camden, and his election is generally conceded. Judge Hays is opposed by Harry H. Myers, the Republican candidate, and George W. Murphy, the nominee of the Progressive party.

Tomorrow's election will give Arkansas the rather unique distinction of having five governors in 1913. The unusually large number of executives is due to the fact that heretofore Arkansas has had no lieutenant governor to succeed to the governorship in case of a vacancy. The president of the state senate has been called upon to serve in the gubernatorial chair until a governor is regularly elected. The recent session of the legislature took steps to provide for the election of a lieutenant governor at the same time a governor is elected, which is expected to obviate the complications that have occurred this year.

PILLOW A PRESERVER

Keeps Head Well Above Water and Leaves Limbs Free.

Since the sinking of the Titanic the Patent Office has been deluged with applications on life preservers. One of the latest of these is that shown herewith and designed by a Maryland man. An elongated pillow, filled with buoyant, non-absorbent material, has a narrow tube, or hose, through which the head is passed. There are also devices by which the adjacent portions of the bag may be fastened around the chest, and the ends extended back and front for additional support. The advantage of this preserver is that only the head is above water, and the average person weighs only 125 pounds in the water, the body below the pillow has very little effect on its buoyancy. The arms and legs are left perfectly free.

CAMPAIGN IS CLOSED BY MASS MEETINGS

STRENUOUS TEN DAYS OF BITTER FIGHTING ENDED.

BIG RALLIES ARE HELD

Addresses Made at Myers Theatre and in the Court House Park.

Ten days of strenuous and bitter campaigning between the forces behind the recall candidate, John C. Nichols, and the forces behind Mayor James A. Fathens, came to an end last night with mass meetings large ly attended, one at the court house park, where the recall speakers made their last appeal, and the other at the Myers theatre, where the cause of the present administration was given its final defense against the slander and abuse which has been unjustly heaped upon it.

All Janesville, intense in interest throughout the past days of bitter struggle, seemed gathered in the downtown district at eight o'clock last evening. There was nothing but a great mass meeting, except the outcome at the polls tomorrow, the issues at stake, the men behind the issues. Women, equally as much aroused to the importance of the contest, were present in large numbers, and seemed particularly enthusiastic at the Fathens' meeting.

The ball was formally opened when the Moose band, playing under the auspices of the Fathens' campaign, marched down Milwaukee street, corner, stopped at the Myers Hotel, corner and gave a most delightful concert. Then they headed towards the Myers Theatre, to give way to the recall speakers.

Early in the evening, the Bower City band, hired for the recall mass meeting, formed at the corner of Wall and North Academy streets and started a parade of the streets. The band, up an audience. The Moose band, secured by the Fathens' contingent, gave a short concert at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets and in front of the theatre.

A cheer, somewhat forced, greeted Candidate Nichols, R. L. Lay and John L. Fisher, as they stepped onto the platform. Lay at once stepped forward and with much acclamation, as Mayor Fathens was introduced, a crowd to accept their challenge for a mock debate. Although the recall party had been assured that Mayor Fathens would not speak at their meeting last night, for ten times Mr. Lay let out his howl demanding the presence of the Mayor of Janesville. It might be well to note in this connection that City Attorney W. H. Dougherty had asked to be allowed to speak at their meeting but had been refused.

At the opera house every seat was taken when the meeting in behalf of Mayor Fathens began. Alex. Nichols, Mayor Fathens, and Mr. Dougherty were the speakers. The meeting was an enthusiastic and gratifying one and was marked by the utmost courtesy to the speakers who were frequently and loudly applauded. Mayor Fathens received a mighty ovation when the entire audience rose to their feet and cheered as he came forward to address them.

As to the arguments presented they amounted to a summing up of the issues and an appeal for the men to turn out and vote. Mr. Matheson made clear the situation that the citizens and not with Mayor Fathens, he defied the meaning of the campaign—the forces demanding regulation, a clean, moral city with law enforcement prevailing as under the regime of Mayor Fathens, opposed by the recall faction standing for law violation, and a wide-open town. As a citizen, a property owner, as a professional man, as a husband and father, he declared that he could not but find it his duty to vote for the candidate in power of Mayor James A. Fathens.

Mayor Fathens took time to read from the report of the city commission showing how the city affairs had been carried on with business despatch and economy during the months that the commission plan has been in operation. He closed with a sympathetic statement as to his attitude on the law enforcement question. He was for law enforcement and a decent, business-like administration.

Mr. Dougherty received a heavy round of applause as he began his address. Although he has spoken for many times during the campaign, he still had some telling shots to deliver and he gathered together the insinuations and flimsy arguments of the recallists and literally hurled them back at their own heads.

He made a telling blow when he said: "Why we aren't so bad after all; John Nichols had to get a court order with our consent in order to get his name on the ballot tomorrow. Nichols' personal campaign committee had failed to file their expense account statement on Saturday, although I had given them fair warning."

The waterworks, the bridge question, the street improvement questions and other matters which have been brought into the fight, were shown up in all their trivial weakness. "You citizens are the jury," said Mr. Dougherty, "and Mayor Fathens is the defendant. It is the custom for the plaintiff in any case, and the recallists are the plaintiffs in this case, to make their charges and their statements in the presence of the defendant and ask him to answer them. The defendant is not going to chase the plaintiff around and let him make his defense over behind the court house. Let them come here and make their statements as they have been asked to do."

R. L. Lay was the presiding officer at the recall meeting. Upon a raised platform, erected near the Main street side of the Court House park, the speakers on this side of the question held forth to an audience that charged all sides of the stand and half way across Main street. Autos and carriages were present and the speakers inspired by the large audience held forth in a lively manner.

After Mr. Lay's historic efforts and hysterical attempt to make Mayor Fathens in the crowd, when he had been stopped to listen the could have plainly distinguished the cheers that greeted him at the Myers Theatre, the meeting proceeded with the candidate John C. Nichols.

Mr. Nichols was greeted with applause. His address took in the water works question and the morals of the city. He laid great stress upon the fact that when he was Mayor vice was just as rampant as it was seven months after Mr. Fathens took office, and that it was not Mr. Fathens but the committee of Fifteen that deserved credit for cleaning up the city. He read extracts from the Gazette to prove his statement and made frequent references to the work of the committee in connection with it. It was almost in the same breath he made a bitter attack upon these self same ministers for opposing his press associations to office, "turning 'Dull' voted and easy marks."

The invisible government was given its try out and the fight to have the recall papers approved and filed discussed in detail. The speaker then gave a statement made by Mr. Fisher at a previous meeting that he had not been helped by the banks and the Commercial club in the establishing his business and said most emphatically that he had received all aid possible from the business men of the city.

The saloon zone was decried and the Widow Dalton being deprived of its income by its establishment was given a thorough airing and City Attorney Dougherty was personally blamed for the delay in their purchase. Mr. Nichols closed his address that whether defeated or elected his hearers efforts were for the upbuilding of Janesville.

John L. Fisher followed Mr. Nichols and practically reviewed the same ground as on his previous addresses. He played up the feature that the stakes in the present city administration was playing for the largest ever attempted in any city of the state and by inference and implication suggested that something aside from legal means was being used to delay at purchasing the water works.

Labor was arrayed against capital and insinuations were cast at the pupils of the city for taking part in the present campaign. Mr. Fisher's main arguments were that Mr. Nichols had business ability and could fill the office, if elected, with credit to himself and the city. The Father's platform was flayed by arguments coined for the occasion.

Mr. Lay also took occasion to deny his statement relative to sticking to the unfortunate women, taking an eleven hour occasion to do so. Mr. Nichols closed the meeting thanking the audience for their attention and asking their support at the polls.

As soon as the meeting in the park was over, they headed towards the theatre seeking entrance, only to be disappointed as every doorway was jammed and they were forced to crowd into the lobby to listen to the addresses. Later in the evening they marched up Milwaukee street playing and the excitement of the event died down.

MARION MACDONALD SUMMONED BY DEATH

Veteran in Local Mail Service and Respected Citizen Passed Away Last Evening.

Marion MacDonald, veteran in the city delivery mail service of Janesville and for nearly thirty years a respected resident of the city, passed away shortly before seven o'clock last evening at his home, 329 North Jackson street. Death followed on illness of long duration during which he had been steadily failing for the past few weeks.

Mr. MacDonald was born in Butler county, Ohio, January 10, 1841. He spent his boyhood and grew to young manhood at his Ohio home, moving to Illinois one year before the outbreak of the Civil war. He responded to Lincoln's first call for volunteers and returned to Ohio to enlist with his own company in the Twelfth Ohio Volunteer Infantry. He was wounded at the battle of Antietam, after he had recovered, he was discharged from service and returned to Ohio. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant during his term of service in the artillery. He was a member of the local G. A. R. Post and was at one time its commander.

He returned to his home in Illinois after the war and came to Janesville with his family in 1885 where he resided until his death. When the city delivery mail service was established in Janesville in 1887 he secured one of the two of the first appointments, Claire Capelle being the only other city carrier at the time. Mr. MacDonald was continuously in the mail service until two years ago in January when he was forced to retire owing to poor health and injury which he suffered from a broken leg.

Endowed with noble qualities of Christian character, Mr. MacDonald was highly respected by a large circle of friend and acquaintances. He was a kind and loving husband and father. He was a loyal and patriotic citizen, at all times taking keen interest in city affairs.

Besides his wife he leaves five daughters and three sons: Mrs. R. H. Grove of Independence, Mo.; Mrs. J. T. Pickett and Misses Florence, Lulu and Beth, all of this city; Clarence MacDonald of Elfield, Wisconsin; and Roy and Willis MacDonald of this city. He also leaves two sons, one brother and one sister. Mrs. Grove who were in Chicago at the time of his death came to Janesville last evening.

Funeral services will be held from the home at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. J. C. Hazen of the Baptist church will officiate.

Mrs. William Hall, wife of the former Alderman William Hall, passed away at her home, 329 South Main street, at three o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Hall had been ill for some time but her death was very unexpected.

Appropriately with the immediate cause. Besides her husband she leaves one daughter, Mrs. J. P. Thorne and one son, William Arnold, both of this city. She also leaves one sister, Mrs. Selker of Amboy, Ill.

Funeral services for the late Edwin E. Eddington were held from the home, 1008 Clark street, at two o'clock this afternoon. Dr. J. W. Laughlin of the Presbyterian church officiated, speaking words of comfort to the bereaved family. Those who acted as pall-bearers were F. W. Pierson, Henry Rogers, D. W. Watt, E. F. Carpenter, George Turk and Andrew Scott.

Mr. Eddington had been a resident of Janesville for nearly fifty years and enjoyed the friendship and respect of many persons, both in Janesville and the surrounding country. He served his nation in the Civil war and was a patriotic and highly honored citizen.

Wild Rice a Valuable Food.

Wild rice, according to a consular report, is "the most nutritious cereal in America." The plant has a long black grain, and hence is sometimes called black rice. It has been used from time immemorial by certain Indian tribes as their principal food. In recent years it has come into the white man's markets, selling for considerably more than ordinary white rice.

Fleider Jones, the old war-horse was unjust of Ban Johnson to who used to make the White Sox clean up everything they met, says he's been out of the game too long to pilot a one-hoss chaise, much less the Boston-Red Sox. Though offered the magnificent wages of $25,000 a year, Jones declined saying that he really didn't think he was longer capable of running a regular ball team. "No," says Jones, "I don't think I'll take it up. I could make a nice little piece of change out of it, but it's been five years since I've looked hard at a baseball and that's too long. I couldn't run an outfit now, and I'd have an awful time with a team that needs so much prodding and pushing to make it come through. Still lots of people would do most anything for $25,000."

What appears to be the last word in the McAleer-Stahl affair gives the impression that Jake quit of his own accord and drew his salary in full to the close of the present season. McAleer was interviewed in Detroit a few days ago and gave out the information that Stahl came to him wanting to know whether McAleer planned to make a change in the management at the close of the present season. McAleer replied that there might be some sort of a change made although he had no definite plans. Whereupon Stahl replied that such being the case he would prefer to call things off at once and in short, resigned. He was paid his salary in full for the season and is just nothing from a money standpoint by not working out the season. McAleer declares that it

The longest game of the season thus far, was played at Milwaukee a week or so ago when Milwaukee and Columbus battled for nineteen innings before the winning run crossed the pan. Milwaukee finally won, using four pitchers, and with the score 6 to 5. Jack Ferry pitched the whole game for Columbus, and although he gave eighteen hits he tightened up in the proper places and gave only three passes.

An unusual feature of this season in both the big leagues is the fact that the old pitchers who ordinarily work their best in the very hot weather are proving unusually weak. As a rule, in the early part of a season, when the hitting is fast and furious, we hear the old one that goes, "Just wait till the hot weather and you'll see the old boys flounder up." And the batting fails off, not only because the pitchers work better in the very warm months, but the batters usually weaken then and are overcome with the hookworm and other forms of ailment. This season, however, it hasn't seemed to work that way at all and the old pitchers—the best for mid-season form—are suffering more from the fahrenheit than the batters. This very seldom thus.

PIRATES GET TWO STARS FROM MINORS

George Watson and Joe Kelly.

When the Pittsburgh Pirates purchased outfielders George Watson and Joe Kelly from the St. Joseph Western league team, Barney Dreyfus snagged the two best run-makers in the minor leagues today, a perusal of averages for the last three seasons indicates. In three seasons this pair scored 673 runs, Kelly being a little ahead with 342 scores.

Further evidence showed that the cause of death was bronchitis, and that the woman had been dead for two days.

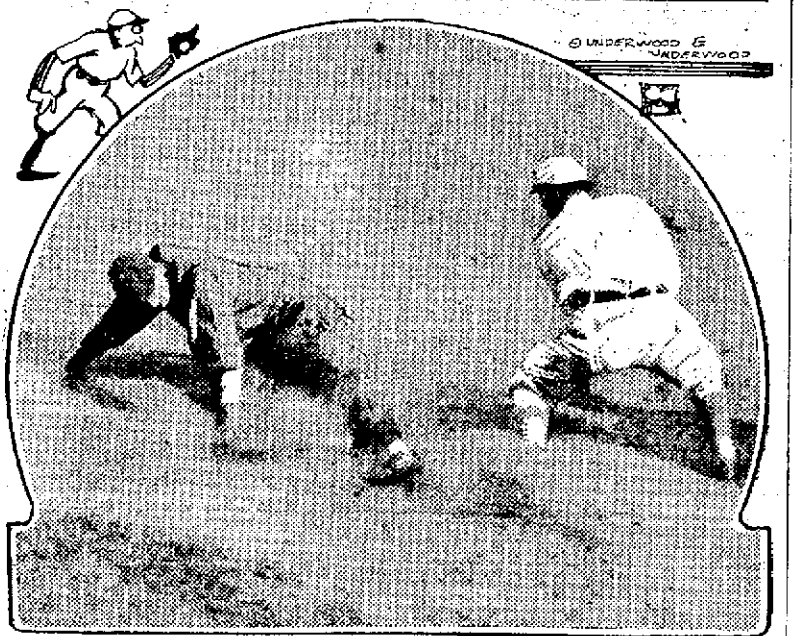

LOCAL MEN START WALKING TRIP TO MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Carl Safady and Frank Schuller, two Janesville young men left this morning for a walking trip to Minneapolis, Minnesota, and expect to be on their trip about three weeks. The two young men at first planned a trip to the Pacific coast, but after careful thought were more conservative in their walk and decided to take Weston's route to Minneapolis. Both are good athletes and will finish the walk in short order, but as it is of a pleasure nature, and no set schedule was made out they will take their time and enjoy themselves while enroute. Their friends expect them to return by train in about three weeks.

JANESVILLE HORSES RACE IN NEBRASKA

Mabel Riser and Peter Emmett Make Good Showing on Track at Beatrice—High Grade Circuit.

Two Janesville horses, Mabel Riser, owned by Thomas Slagle and Peter Emmett, owned by Philip Sheridan, are acquitting themselves creditably on the Nebraska racing circuit. Last week both were entered and raced at Beatrice, The Beatrice Daily Sun says of their performance:

"Mabel Riser, one of the horses in this race, acted badly while her driver was trying to get her started in the second heat. She threw herself on the track near the gate at the home stretch and caused a delay of about fifteen minutes. After being assisted to her feet and having her harness adjusted, she started in the race and finished fourth place."

Peter Emmett entered in the 2:22 pace with eight starters. He finished 5th, 7th, 5th and was drawn. Time was 2:18, 2:17 1/4, 2:16, 2:15 1/4 and 2:16.

Mabel Riser in the 2:27 trot with ten starters, finished 8th, 5th and 4th. Time was 2:24 1/4, 2:23 1/4 and 2:25.

TODAY'S VOTE PROMISES TO BREAK ALL RECORDS FOR FORMER ELECTIONS

NEARLY TWO THOUSAND BALLOTS CAST BEFORE 1:30 THIS AFTERNOON.

SHOW GREAT INTEREST

Will Take Considerable Time to Find Total Count After Polls Close This Evening at Eight.

Never in the history of Janesville's political life has there been such a heavy vote polled so early in the day as was cast in the local election which is being held today. Before one-thirty this afternoon a total of 1947 votes had been cast in the five wards of the city. When it is understood that the total vote of the city in the election of 1908 was but 2568, in 1910 but 1411 and 1912 only 2359, the real significance of the vote today can be appreciated.

The voting started early in the day, in fact, as soon as the polls opened at six o'clock. Almost before the election officers were ready for them, the voters had lined up, waiting to cast their ballots. Both sides had autos, driven by their owners to comply with the corrupt practice act, in use and they began their early pilgrimages to and from the polls, with voters. Many, however, preferred to walk and did so.

The Vote.
The vote by wards at one-thirty was as follows:
First ward 379
Second ward 308
Third ward 517
Fourth ward 498
Fifth ward 245

Early Predictions.
The early predictions were for a very close election. Enthusiastic

AGREES TO SUPPORT WIFE AND CHILDREN

Case Against George Knipschild Adjudged Thirty Days on Promise To Mend His Ways.

Thirty days adjournment was given the case of the State versus George Knipschild, arraigned in the municipal court yesterday afternoon on the charge of non-support of his family, on his agreeing to accept whatever work Poormaster Asa Anderson found for him, and to turn over a portion of his wages to the latter for the support of his family. Knipschild has a wife and three small children who have been in destitute circumstances. They have received help from the county for the last three years or more as well as from the churches and the Associated Charities. Mrs. Knipschild admitted that her husband had not turned over more than $2 to her in four weeks time. The case will be pressed against Knipschild if he does not live up to his agreement.

WANT WOMAN POLICEMAN

Oshkosh, July 22.—There is some probability that within a short time Oshkosh will join the ranks of other progressive American cities by having a woman added to the police force. Secret of Perfect Mortar Lost.

The man who could disinter the buried recipe for Roman mortar would be bowed down to and worshiped by the builders of the present day. How they made it is a profound secret, and bids fair to remain so. The mortar is as firm now as it was two thousand years ago; it has calmly scoffed at the ravages of time and weather.

ASSEMBLY IS BUSY AT NIGHT SESSION

Several Senate Bills Are Passed and Resolutions Are Given Indorsement.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., July 22.—The assembly placed its stamp of approval last night on the Peasdale bill providing penalties for minors who loiter around or play games in pool or billiard halls or bowling alleys, if without written permission from parents, and imposing a fine upon owners of such places who permit violations to occur. Assemblyman Hansen thought the bill was unnecessary and moved non-concurrence, but the motion failed and the bill was sent to engrossment.
The assembly passed the senate resolution providing for the publication of all the messages of the governor since the state's admission in 1848. It unanimously passed the Scott resolution on the death of former Senator Charles S. Taylor of Barron county, and after some debate concurred in the Bosshard resolution memorializing the state department at Washington to use its offices to ameliorate the conditions of oppression among the Jewish people in southern Russia. Assemblyman Rowe urged defeat of the resolution and Assemblymen Mahon, Anderson and Don C. Hall favored it.
The assembly killed a finance committee bill providing for an investigation of the subject of accidents, sickness and invalidity. Assemblyman Nye explaining that a similar bill was before the senate which had already passed the house. The bill giving the mayor of Milwaukee power to appoint a board of tax review of five members was killed. Assemblyman Rowe moved a reconsideration and the bill will come up again Thursday. Assemblyman Hansen attempted to kill a bill giving cities power to install ornamental lights, but upon explanation of Assemblyman Holmes' motion was withdrawn and the bill concurred in.

The assembly concurred in a bill for the appointment of a commission to determine upon the advisability of erecting monuments upon the battlefields of Antietam and Gettysburg. Assemblyman Hansen advanced the finance committee bill to establish a home for female offenders and a bill appropriating for deficiencies for state institutions under the state board of control.

"There is nothing sweeter," says Ella Wheeler Wilcox, "than to hear in the serene hour of a starlit night a gentle voice calling, calling you." Well, it is not so all-fired sweet when the other fellow has a full house and you can't show more than a measly pair of queens.—New Orleans States.

RAILWAY COMMISSION TAKES HAND IN TELEPHONE CASE

Madison, Wis., July 22.—The state railroad commission was advised by Attorney General Owen, in a formal opinion today, that the Citizens' telephone company of Eau Claire is not furnishing local telephone service to subscribers in the city of Eau Claire within the requirement of the statute regarding duplication of lines, and is therefore prohibited to install a local telephone exchange for furnishing such service in the city. Until the contrary is established in court, he holds that the commission should decline to authorize the issuance by the Citizens' Telephone company of stocks for such purpose.

The company applied to the commission for authority to issue $50,000 the property of the Chippewa County Telephone company in Eau Claire and constructing a local exchange. The Wisconsin Telephone company opposed this application, contending that the Chippewa County company was in reality a toll company doing business with outside points. The company's subscribers in Eau Claire number 28. Its local service is incidental to its principal service. This local service is described in the attorney general's opinion as "at most no more than a mere technical existence," and "insignificant," considering the size of the city.

To permit a general duplication of an existing local telephone exchange," says the opinion, "in a city of this size upon no more substantial compliance with the statutory requirement as to furnishing local telephone service would, in my opinion, be quite as subversive of the law's prohibition as to permit it in the absence of any pretense of compliance."

AMBASSADOR WILSON STARTING FROM MEXICO CITY FOR THE WHITE HOUSE

Wilson Starts for U. S. A.

FLOATING HELL OF GEORGE IV'S TIME VISITS U. S.; SHOWS BYGONE HORRORS

Bilboes or necklets of convict ship in operation.

An idea of the treatment meted out to prisoners in the days gone by may be gleaned by a visit to the "Success" anchored off West 70th street, New York. Down in the hold is the torture chamber called the bilboes or necklets, where refractory prisoners were jacked up against a beam, and an iron bracket passing around the neck, and a pair passing around the ankles of the prisoner were a certain means of breaking the spirit of the most unruly convict. Total darkness and the pitching and heaving in the heavy seas as the sailing vessel ploughed her way through the turbulent waters added a good deal to the discomfort of the unfortunates who were punished by being sentenced to the bilboes.

THE MEN WILL PRESENT A LITTLE PLAY

Senators and representatives are firing on their armor and preparing in numerous ways for a great battle which is due in Washington on July 30. Suffragists will make up the attacking force.

It will be the most formidable attack ever made by the women on Washington.

Miss Alice Paul is in charge of the camp at Washington, and is planning the general assault. Women from all over the East will be in the invading army and will approach the capital on foot, a-horseback, by train, in automobiles and in numerous other ways.

The National Men's League of Northern New York, of which James Lees Laidlaw of New York city is president, will go to Washington at the same time, obtaining signers to the petition on the way.

LITTLE RED SCHOOL HOUSE TO BE A CENTER OF INTEREST AT THE INTERNATIONAL HYGIENE CONGRESS IN BUFFALO

Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker, president of General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. S. S. Crockett, chairman of Public Health Department.

Under the personal direction of Mrs. S. S. Crockett, the 7,000 women's clubs of America are taking an active interest in the fourth international congress on school hygiene, which is to be held at Buffalo, August 25-30, and which has for its object the improving of the health and efficiency of school children, especially in the little red schoolhouses. The club women are requesting mayors and governors to appoint delegates to this congress, which will take up plans for improving the health and efficiency of school children.

VERDICTS AGAINST NEW YORK POLICE GRAFTERS MAY LEAD TO PROSECUTIONS OF OFFICIALS "HIGHER UP"; WHITMAN IN TRIUMPH

The recent verdicts against four of New York's grafting police inspectors—Dennis Sweeney, John J. Mutha, James E. Hussey and James F. Thompson—will lead to prosecutions of officials "higher up," it is said.

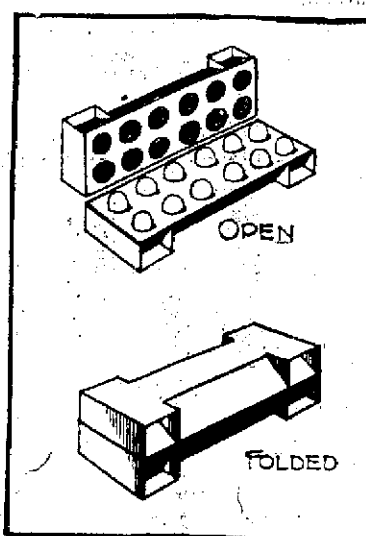

The verdicts mark a long stride in the graft investigation conducted by District Attorney Whitman. The cases of the four former inspectors, now captains under suspension, were the most important to be brought to trial following the exposures in which men close to the graft ring turned informers in hope of saving themselves. One of the grafters who turned state's evidence was former Police Captain Thomas W. Walsh. He told an amazing story of police corruption implicating all four of the defendants.

BOX FOR MAILING EGGS

Pockets Keep Eggs Separate and Protect Them Well.

A box for the transportation of eggs has been designed by a Minnesota man. The box is composed of two sections, each section having a face plate with a series of holes that register with a series of holes on the other section. On the outer side of each plate are ribs, or corrugations, extending lengthwise and forming, in conjunction with the holes, a series of substantially diamond-shaped pockets that support the eggs out of contact with the openings in the plates. Flaps fold over the ribs and interlock to form a rectangular section at each end, which extends beyond the sides and takes any shocks. The box thus formed is so well protected that eggs may be shipped with small fear of breakage through the parcel post.

To Clean the Soles of Shoes.

Get your druggist to make a solution of orange shellac and alcohol, and with a small brush apply this carefully to the heels and soles of your white shoes whenever the latter are polished. It leaves a satiny finish, and a ten-cent bottle has lasted considerably over a year.—Woman's Home Companion.

NOW SEE WHAT EQUAL SUFFRAGE HAS DONE! WHILE MA GOES TO THE POLLS TO VOTE POOR PA SWEATS OVER THE FAMILY WASHING

Mr. Colby hanging out the clothes; Mrs. Colby casting her ballot.

The baleful effects of equal suffrage, predicted by the anti-suffragists, are already being felt by mere man in Illinois. The first woman to vote under the new suffrage law in Illinois was Mrs. Colby of Libertyville, the other day. While she went to the polls in the morning, poor Mr. Colby perspired over the family washing, and had it out on the line when she returned, two hours after her departure.

Important Adjuncts to Life.

If the telescope is the greatest of all eyes, the microscope is the most useful of all eyes. With the microscope and the telescope we look in opposite directions. The one shows us the illimitable universe, whereby the imagination is excited to conceptions of infinity, but the other reveals the infinitely small—the microbes, the germs, the cells. With the telescope we elevate the mind; with the microscope we combat the enemies of life. Both are the handmaids of science and civilization.

Minuteness of Molecules.

If we try to count the number of molecules contained in one cubic millimeter of hydrogen gas, first arranging them in groups of a billion each, it would take a thousand years to count these groups. So writes M. Boli, a French physicist, in illustrating the powerlessness of figures.

Mystery Cleared Up.

"My theory," said the eminent student, "is that the Venus of Milo was holding her drapery up with one of those lost arms." "I see," replied the man who knows nothing of art; "and signaling for a taxicab with the other."

ODD MEASURING CUP

Spoon Pivoted on Bottle Neck and Filled Through Trough.

Through the invention of a New York man, the measuring of medicine into spoonfuls has been brought down to a science. He has devised an attachment for bottles which works almost automatically. A little spout, with a metal band for a clip, can be adjusted to the neck of the bottle. Pivoted to the end of this spout is a spoon, or rather, the bowl of a spoon. This spoon swings horizontally, so that when the bottle is tilted to fill it the spoon always maintains the same level, as if held in the hand. When the spoon is filled the bottle is straightened up and the spoon is then tilted in the other direction, point downward, into the mouth or into the glass which is to hold the medicine. There is also a dotted line around the interior of the spoon by which a half spoonful may be measured.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WHY GROW OLD?
THERE are not many Doctor Johnsons to set forth on a first romantic voyage at 64.—Stevenson.
 A reader friend hunted me out in my lair the other day and gave me a delightful half hour. I found great pleasure in meeting her and hearing her intelligent comments on men and events, but even greater pleasure in listening to the following account of herself.

She is something over 70, an age at which, not so many years ago, women used to put on caps and retire to chimney corners, and at which, even today, it is not ordinary for them to go more than a few hours' journey from home unaccompanied.

But this woman does not see why years and helplessness should be connected unless there is actual physical feebleness, and so every spring and fall she puts her house in order and then sallies happily forth alone on a pilgrimage to the homes of those friends who must be merely letter friends to her for the rest of the year. Whenever possible she includes a little sight-seeing and other diversions.

After two or three weeks of this she returns to her quiet country home, with a mind full of new thoughts and ideas, and a heart full of new associations and memories, tired, perhaps, in body, but infinitely rested in soul.

Is it any wonder that she is 72 years young?
 When she left my home I walked a little distance with her, and I was surprised at her brisk step.

"It's because I never began walking slowly," she answered my comments. "I never let myself get the idea that I had to."

That last sentence evidently contains the secret of this woman's youth. She has never let herself get the idea that she had to walk slowly, and never go away from home, and be afraid of automobiles, and wear old-fashioned clothes and think old-fashioned thoughts, and be altogether different person; and so none of these things ever happened to her.

Sometimes I wonder how much of the change that comes to people in the late sixties and seventies is caused by physical weakness, and how much is the result of their acceptance of the traditional point of view.

Of course I have never been old myself, and so I don't know, but whenever I meet someone like this reader friend of mine who, though old in years, refuses to grow old in her ways of life, refuses to think of old age, I always wonder if a great many more people could not keep as active and unchanged if they would only take this point of view. And I am happy to believe that there are more and more who do.

And I am happy to believe that there are more and more who do.

I think it is a splendid sign of the times and I hope it may be amply fulfilled during the twentieth century.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have so many pimples and blackheads on my nose and forehead. What can be done?

(2) I have a very tanned face and neck; what will whiten them? I have been using buttermilk, but it doesn't help me.

(3) I have very thin and short hair; what will make it grow thick and long?

(4) What will cure freckles?

(5) How can I enlarge my bust?

(6) Is my writing very good?

READER.
 (1) Internal treatment has much to do with pimples and blackheads. Your stomach may not be in good order and perhaps you don't keep your bowels open. Take a dose of Epsom salts (one teaspoon in a glass of cold water) once a week or as often as needed to keep your bowels always moving freely. Eat plentifully of fresh fruits and vegetables, drink all the pure milk and water you want, and don't be afraid to bathe your whole body every day. Use warm water and a mild toilet soap for the face, and every night wash it well with good cleansing cold cream. After the massage wipe off every trace of cream. This will in a few days soften the pimples and black heads so that you can gently press them out of the skin after pricking with a sterilized needle. Be sure not to bruise the skin when you do it. Then dab witch hazel on the face to heal and close the pores. Keep up this treatment all the time and in a month you will see an improvement. But you must keep everlastingly at it. Exercise out of doors and perspiring freely will also help.

(2) Lemon juice will whiten. It can't be done all at once and you must be careful not to expose the skin for more than.

(3) Rub a little vasoline into the scalp every night—just a tiny bit—and brush the hair with at least 150 strokes every day. Use clean brush and combs always.

(4) Nothing will cure them permanently.

BLONDE.
 Just wait, my dear. If he wants to keep up the friendship with you, he will manage to write to you or call on you. If he doesn't want to, you don't care to have anything further to do with him, do you? There may be a good reason for his actions. He may be sick again. If there isn't, you are young enough not to have a lasting headache. Time works wonders, blonde.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE DEPARTMENT
 CONDUCTED BY MRS. ALICE ORCHARD KIM

Give Mother a Rest.
 If there is a daughter in the home I wonder if she wouldn't like to give mother a week-end rest. It is not always possible for mother to pack her bag like father or the older children and go away somewhere whenever she feels she needs a change and rest, but if someone will take Saturday's and Sunday's work this week and let mother do just as she pleases at home it will give her and all the rest of the family the amount of real recreation she will get from such relaxation.

I will admit that mothers are not always easy to manage on this "rest" business. If they only would take more of it and often, work wouldn't be work, because doing things when one is rested is pleasant. Everyone who is normal just naturally likes to be busy; but there comes a time when the head of the home, when she is tired and worn out. Then it's time for the members of the family to see it and step in and take her place. She won't go until the last minute and never say a word, so don't wait for her to ask for it.

Plan Saturday's and Sunday's meals on Friday and write out the entire grocery order for these two days. Do the marketing Friday and leave the order for fresh green vegetables desired to be delivered Saturday. With your order in advance, the chances are for better selection and better service. Then, too, there is no time and effort wasted Saturday in waiting for the grocery order.

Sunday Breakfast.
 Cantaloupe
 Berries and Cream
 Soft-Boiled Eggs
 Coffee
 Luncheon.
 Egg Sandwiches
 Raspberry Jam
 Cottage Cheese
 Boston Cookies
 Iced Tea With Mint.

The cookies very easily made and baked Saturday morning, also the eggs boiled for the sandwiches and chopped ready to mix with the salad dressing. They should be made right after breakfast Sunday, so if any members of the family wish to spend the day in the woods they can take their share of sandwiches with them.

Egg Sandwiches.
 Chop fine the whites of four hard-boiled eggs; press the yolks through a sieve and add to the whites. Moistened to the desired consistency with salad dressing seasoned and spread between thin slices of bread with shredded lettuce; cut into any shape desired.

Cottage Cheese.
 Heat thick sour milk slowly over hot water until curds separate, strain through a fine sieve or cloth, drain for several hours and season.

Boston Cookies.
 Material—Butter, one-half cup; crisco, one-half cup; sugar, one and one-half cup; flour, three and one four cups; chopped nuts, one cup; currants, one-half cup; seeded raisins, one-half cup; eggs, three; soda, one teaspoon; cinnamon, one teaspoon.

Utensils.—Measuring cup, measuring spoon, baking pan, tablespoon, two bowls, egg beater.
Directions.—Cream butter, crisco and sugar together in the bowl and add eggs well beaten. Mix soda, a little salt and cinnamon with flour and sift in half; then add nuts and fruit, and then the remaining flour. Mix well and drop by teaspoonsful one inch apart on a buttered pan and bake in a moderate oven.

Supper.
 Stewed La Quin
 Browned Potatoes with the Meat
 Quartered Tomatoes on Lettuce
 Rolls
 Jelly
 Blueberries and Cream
 Boston Cookies
 Coffee

Stew is prepared right after breakfast and put into the spit or fireless cooker. If it is baked in the oven it need not go in until after luncheon, but will require no watching with a very slow fire, but use a fireless cooker if possible, and the potatoes should be peeled, put in cold water and cooked with the meat. We have planned the easiest possible meals for the daughter which, if she has had experience with mother, will not be difficult to prepare.

Round Steak a la Quin.
 Cover a slice of round steak, cut about one and one-half inches thick, with flour and, using the edge of a plate or meat pounder, pound as much as possible into the meat. Melt two tablespoons butter in a baking pan, and when hot brown the meat quickly on both sides, sprinkle with salt and pepper and cover with cup of water or tomatoes. Cover closely and bake in a slow oven for two hours, or until the meat is tender throughout. This is an excellent recipe for use in the fireless cooker. Serve with tomato sauce or alone with the gravy.

Tomato Salad.
 Peel and ice the required number of tomatoes; arrange a bed of shredded lettuce on plates, cut the tomatoes in quarters and lay on this. Grate a small onion into the French dressing and serve over all. Serve at once.

If these are carefully planned and as much as possible prepared in advance, there will be no difficulty in having them very quickly made, even though the daughter has not had all of mother's experience.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

THE greatest efforts of the race have always been traceable to the love of praise, as its greatest catastrophes to the love of pleasure.

—Ruskin.

SOME HYGIENIC DISHES.

The true hygienist uses no condiments to dull the sense of taste and disguise the natural flavors of food, eats neither meat nor its products, and would seem to those who have been accustomed to a varied diet a sort of starvation diet. The preparation of foods without salt do at first seem tasteless, but one in a short time loses all desire for highly seasoned foods. The hygienist learns to enjoy the pure natural flavors of foods, the amount he needs to keep up the body health and the right combination of fruits, grains, vegetables and nuts. Very little sugar is used, allowing the sweet fruits to sweeten the more acid ones by combining them.

Boiled Beets.—Wash fresh young beets and put them to cook in boiling water, using care not to bruise the skins. Cook until tender; remove the cover and cook until the water is evaporated. Take out the beets, slip off the skins and slice thin. Pour over them a dressing of diluted lemon juice, and allow them to stand for a few minutes to season.

Hygienic Popovers.—Grease iron gem pans with olive oil, after they have been heated very hot. While they are heating put a cup of ice water into a bowl and add a cup of graham or whole wheat flour; mix and beat until smooth, beating in as much air as possible. Drop a little of the batter into each mold and bake fifteen minutes in a hot oven. If the irons are hot and the oven right, these will be truly delicious and crisp.

Nut Roll With Tomato Sauce.—To a cup of fine cracker crumbs add a tablespoonful of peanut butter and enough hot water to make a paste. Mold in cakes and fry a delicate brown. Serve with Tomato Sauce.—Cook half a can of tomatoes and one small onion chopped fine, until thick. Strain through a sieve, return to the fire and thicken with a tablespoonful of browned flour.

The hygienic way of cooking vegetables is to drop them into just enough boiling water to cook them, and have nothing left when they are done. This leaves all of the flavor in the vegetables.

Things Worth Knowing.
 To cut thin slices of bread for sandwiches, if the bread is buttered before it is cut it will save the difficulty of buttering thin slices of bread.

To bleach white goods that have become yellow, dip them in strong blue water after washing, let them become very blue, and then hang out to dry. When they are washed they will be thoroughly bleached.

The Table.
 Pineapple Muffins—Sift together one and one-half pints of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and one level teaspoonful of salt. Mix to a batter with one cupful of milk, one cup of shredded pineapple, and one large egg; yolk and white beaten separately and white added last. Drop the batter by the spoonful into muffin tins and bake to a light brown.

Egg and Ham Tidbits.—Line twelve gem pans with puff paste or short crust; fill these with the following preparation: Chop finely six ounces of cooked ham and four hard-boiled eggs. Mix with three yolks of eggs, two tablespoonfuls of cream, and season with salt, celery salt, pepper, paprika and grated nutmeg. Fill up molds and bake in a moderately hot oven. Serve with white or tomato sauce.

Sweetbreads and Mushrooms in Fontage.—Cups. Two cupfuls of cooked diced sweetbreads, half a cupful of mushrooms, one tablespoonful of olive oil, half a teaspoonful of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of butter, and three-quarters of a cupful of cream. Salt, pepper and red pepper. Blend the butter and flour together in a cream, add the seasoning and the sweetbreads and mushrooms. Cover the sweetbreads and mushrooms with the oil and vinegar, and let stand for an hour, then drain and add to the sauce, reheat and serve in fontage cups. To make the fontage cups, in a basin half a cupful of flour, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of olive oil, one egg yolk, dust of red pepper, one-third of a cupful of milk, beat until smooth, allow to stand in a cool place for two hours. Heat a fontage iron in hot fat, dip in batter, place in hot fat, and dry until a delicate brown color. Remove from iron, invert and drain.

His Opinion.
 "It seems to me," ventured the skimp little Mr. Henpeck, "that Professor Peekhead's article advising men to be very careful in their choice of wives lacks—er—well, verisimilitude, or—ah!—some such word. As far as I have ever known the man had no more to do with choosing his wife than he has with getting his photograph taken—he just keeps still, looks as pleasant as he can and accepts whatever is given him."—Judge.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

By FRANCIS JOYCE KENNEDY

If we wish to get along well in this world let us not stand too firm on what we term our rights. Even though we be right in some matters let us be willing to go half way or a little more to settle any difference that may arise in our daily life. It may be, often, that you recall an act of injustice to you and decide to be revenged for it. Forget it! Is there one hour of the day, every day of your life when you haven't been showered with kindness from some one. If not a friend, often a stranger will show you consideration and respect. Can you do less than to give to one person your forgiveness for some real or fancied wrong?

We, most of us, are born proud, sensitive and self-seeking; in fact we are told we shape these traits with the brutes. True education teaches us how to change these traits into humility, service and self-effacement.

To make a child think you need him, a husband that you depend on, a friend that you could hardly do without him, is really a high form of service.

Isn't there apt to be too many gloomy and dissatisfied things in the lives of us all, if we think so? If we want to be candid, wouldn't we all have food for thought? Does it pay? A business man, when a proposition is put before him for his consideration is generally apt to inquire, "Will it pay and if so, how much?" Will gloomy, despondent, revengeful thoughts pay, and, if so, how much? Will sunshine, cheery, kind thoughts pay, and, if so, how much? Figure it out!

The faculty of humor needs to be cultivated in us all. One doesn't live to be flippant and freakish to be joyous, mirthful and happy. Learn to strike the happy medium. Perhaps you know, perhaps you don't, that fingers signed with fruit, may be cleaned by scrubbing them with strong tea. That a little lemon juice rubbed on tarnished faucets will brighten them. That the habit of making personal remarks upon others. Avoid it! That there are enough imitators and common-place individuals without you. Act on your own judgment. That if the great Lord of Heaven and Earth be with you, no one can really be against you. Keep your heart pure and clean.

THE SECRET OF LONESOME COVE

BY
SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS
Author of
AVERAGE JONES, ETC.

It fell in a crumpled heap with one sheet, curving in upward protuberance, conspicuous to the eye. On this sheet there was handwriting, and the handwriting was the same as that of the note Marjorie Blair had identified. Kent retrieved the paper, laid it on his desk, selected a likely spot for one more plunge, and dived into the turbid flood of words. And behold! as he turned, so to speak, the corner of the narrative, the current became suddenly clear. The muddled eloquence fell away, and the style crystallized into the tense, quick testimony of the prime actor in a drama, intensely and shudderingly felt.

The reader ran through it with increasing absorption. Then, pencil in hand, he attacked the first part of the precious screed and emerged from a scene of literary carnage with one brief paragraph in hand, and the slaughtered bodies of many eloquent pages strewn the floor. That one paragraph stated that Preston Jax, whose real name was John Preston, had after a rather long absence, returned away to sea, lived two years before the mast, picked up a smattering of education, been assistant and capper for a magnetic healer, and had finally formulated a system of astrological prophecy that won him a slow but increasing renown. The gist of the system was to assign some particular and often imaginary star to every subject, and by natural aptitude for worm-in-out secrets from the credulous, lead them along the celestial paths of mysticism to a point where he could reach their pocketbooks. He had been especially successful with women. One bit of his philosophy Kent had preserved unaltered.

"They bite slower than men; but when they do take hold, they swallow the hook so deep that you're lucky to get it back at all."

An hour's work with a pencil that should have been blue resolved the document, under Kent's skillful and remorseless editorship, into its salient elements. Obviously it was impossible to put it into alien hands for copying. Kent ordered up a type writer and copied it himself. The duplicate he enclosed in his letter to Sedgewick. The original he put aside to sleep upon.

"This Astraea affair looked good from the first," so began Preston Jax's confession, as beheaded and stripped of its by-words. "It looked like one of the best. You could smell money in it with half a nose. She did first on one of the occult ade—the number four of the old series, a double-column with display in heavy-faced italics and leaded out strong. That ad always was a good woman's fetcher. Her first letter came in on a Monday. I recollect. It was a big mail. There were a lot of curiosities and a couple of suspicious ones, and this was one of half a dozen in the Blue Believers' pile. Irene, my assistant, had put the red pencil on it, when she sorted out the mail, to show it was something special. But don't get her into this. Preston Jax, if you do, it's all off. Jewels and all. Irene has always been for the straight star business and forecast game, and no extras or side lines. Besides, we were married last week."

"What attracted Irene's red pencil, and caught me right away, was the style of the thing. The handwriting was classy. The paper was elegant. There was something rich about it all. This was no Biddy's scribble, but a lady's stationery to make a play with. She quoted poetry, well poetry. First off she signed herself 'An Adept.' She gave her Personal, No. 3, and followed it up with a Special Friend, No. 5. Irene never liked the No. 5. She says it's spooky. Just the same, it fetches them. But not this one. She began to get personal and answered up with the kindred soul racket. But come to Boston? Not a move! Said she couldn't. There were reasons. It looked like the old game—flitter-head of wife and jealous husband. Nothing in that game, you go in for the straight holdup. And blackmail was always too strong for my taste. So I did the natural thing; gave her special advice and doubled on the price. She paid like a lamb."

"Then, blame it if it didn't slip out she wasn't married at all. I lost that letter. It was kind of endearing, Irene put up a howl. It was getting too personal for her taste. I told her I would cut it out. Then she wrote me a lady another address and wrote a letter for a picture. Nothing doing. But one began to him around at a meeting, dollar bill in it. Loose, too, just like you or me might send a two-cent stamp. For expenses, she wrote, and I was to come at once. Our souls had returned to recognize and join each other, she said. Here is the only part of the letter I could dig up from the waste basket."

Here the specimen of handwriting that had caught Kent's eye was pasted upon the document.

"You have pointed out to me that our stars, swinging in mighty circles, are rushing on to a joint climax. Together we may force open the doors to the past, and sway the world as we sought to do in bygone days."

"And so on and so on," continued the narrative. "Well, of course, she was nuts, that is, about the star business. But that don't prove anything. The dippiest star-chaser I ever worked was the head of a department in one of the big stores, and the fiercest little business woman in business hours. You ever knew. It's the romantic in the sex that sets them skidding when it comes to stars, and such like. And Astraea was not a patch on some of them that has been paying me good money for years. That was the letter she first called me Hermann, and signed Astraea to. Said there was no use pretending to conceal her identity any longer from me. Seemed to think I knew all about it. That jarred me some. And with the change of writing in the signature, it all looked pretty queer. You remember the last letter with the copperplate name at the bottom? Well, they all came in the same plain body of the letter very bold and clear; signature written in an entirely different hand. I took it to Chloris, the character-reader, and he said so. 'What's more, he advised me to quit the game. Said there was plain letters in a big stake. I wrote 'Hermann,' just to play up to her lead. Irene got on and threw a fit. She said her woman's intuition told her there was danger in it. Truth is, she was stuck on me herself, and I was after the crash. So I was all for trying Astraea loose from her money, if I had to marry her to do it. She perate plunge together and then the glory that was to be ours. That looked like marriage to me."

"You saw the last letter. It had me rattled, but not rattled enough to quit. There was a map in it of the place for the meeting. That was plain enough. But the 'our' and 'we' business in it bothered me. It looked a bit like a third person. I had not heard anything about any third person in this business. The stars forbade it. I wrote and told her so, and said if there was any outsider rung sudden change of heart, I put my best robe in a bag and bought a ticket for Car's Junction. You can believe that while I was going through my eyes I was keeping a bright eye out for my third party. Well, he was not there, not when I came. And anyway, where he was all the time, I do not know. I never saw him. But I heard him later. I can hear him yet at night. God help me!"

"She was leaning against a little tree at the edge of the thicket when I first saw her. There was plenty of light from the moon and it sifted down through the trees and fell across her head and neck and cast a bit of stage-setting for my business. I could have fixed up myself; and I am some hand at that. You have seen my place, and you know. I noticed a queer circle around her neck. The stones were like soft pink and red and had not ever seen any like them before and I stood there trying to figure whether they were rubies and how much they might be worth. While I was wondering about it, she half-turned and I got my first good look at her face."

"She was younger than I had reckoned on, and not bad to look at, but struck me all wrong; gave me a sort of ugly shiver. Another thing struck me all right, though. That was that she had jewels on pretty much all her fingers in rings and bangles and such. I gave her a hint about that, told her that gems gave the stars a stronger hold on the water, and she had taken all in. She certainly was an easy saw a way."

"A bundle done up in paper was on the ground near her. I ducked back, very still, and got into my robe. The arrangement in her letter was for me to whistle when I got there. I whistled. She straightened up."

"Come," she said. "I am waiting." "Her voice was rather deep and soft. But it wasn't a pleasant softness. Some way I did not like it any better than I liked her looks. It was too late to back out, though. I stepped out into the open and gave her the grand bow."

"The Master of the Stars, at your command," I said.

"You are not as I expected to see you," she said.

"That was a sticker. It might mean most anything. I took a chance. 'Oh, well,' said 'we all change.' 'We change as life changes,' she said. 'They never found you, did they?'"

"From the way she said it I saw she expected me to say 'No.' So I said 'No.'"

"That was left for me to return, and do," she went on with a kind of queer joy that gave me the shivers again.

"Yes, I agreed wishing I knew what she was driving at, but sticking to my text. And here she was all wonderful! After all these years. The instant I saw your statement in the newspaper, I knew it was your soul, calling to mine across the ages."

"You know, Professor Kent, I thought that was so good I made a note of it for future business use. While I was saying it over to myself, she gave me a jar."

"Our boat is at the shore," she said.

"In that last letter she mentioned a ship. And, now, here was this boat sign of either, but could be either. I thought perhaps it would explain the other part of the 'we' and 'our.' If I was going to elope by sea I wanted to know it as much as much."

"Are you steadfast?" she asked.

"Well, there was only one answer to that. I said I was. She opened up her package and took out a coil of rope. It was this gray-white rope, sort of clothes-line, and it looked strong. "What now?" I asked her.

"Close those together," she said. "Close those together, and then the plunge. This time there shall be no failure. They shall not find one of us without the other. You are not afraid?"

"Afraid! My neck was bristling. The woman was proposing, as near as I could make out, that we go out in a boat, tie ourselves together, and jump overboard. She seemed to think it was an encore to some previous performance."

"Go slow," I said, thinking mighty hard. "I don't quite see the point of this."

"All, all is as it is foreordained in the stars," she said. "The curve of the astral courses, the illimitable unchangeable curve that has made us what we are, and shall draw us on and on to our mighty destiny. You, you have pointed out the way."

"That is what she gave me, waving her arms in the air. 'Didn't I curse myself for not remembering what I had written her? No clue, except that the poor soul was phony dippy—too dippy for me to marry. At any price, I wouldn't have been five thousand dollars of diamonds on her. It was a tight place. I wanted to duck the whole thing; but the rings held me. I have always been dippy about diamonds. I suppose she felt me weakening. Women are queer, that way.'"

"You dare to break our pact?" she says in a voice like a woman on the verge of some slush about the neck very gently. You dare to break our pact? she said, and took a diamond circlet from her finger. "What do these count for?" And she put it on my head. Another ring dropped at my feet. Mind, she was giving them to me. I do not know if it would hold in law, she being a lunatic, but I was going to take all I could, on the chance and watch for a getaway. The diamond had me hypnotized.

"These are as nothing to what we shall have," she went on, "after the plunge, wait!"

"She had dropped the rope, and now she went into her paper parcel again, kneeling at my side. She had stooped to look for the fallen ring when I felt her hand slide up my wrist, and she gave me a quick little snap of something cold and close. A bracelet, I thought. And it was a bracelet."

"Together!" she said, and stood up beside me, chained to me by the handcuffs she had slipped on my right wrist and her left. Never think your nerve is sound until you have felt something like that. I thought mine was—and squaled aloud like a child at a ghost.

"Hush," she said, and her free arm pressed across my mouth.

"How much to let me off?" I asked as soon as I could get breath. You see, it flashed on me that it was a trap. You can never tell in our line, when the detectives may be after you, or what kind of a game they'll put up. I looked around me and saw a bunch of stones to come and jump me, but I didn't see a thing. Her next words put me on.

"The stars! The stars! She whispered. 'See ours, how they light our pathway across the sea. The sea that awaits us!'"

"More breath came back to me. It wasn't a trap, then. She was only a crazy woman, that I had to get rid of. I looked down at the handcuffs. A hammer would have had dull rusted edges. Work of it; but I did not have a stone. I did not even have a stone. There would be stones in the broken old land beyond the thicket. I thought I cliff's edge.

"Even if I had tried to follow I never could have caught her. As she was going straight for her death, she dropped down out of sight into a hollow and came up on the rise beyond. I yelled to her to stop, for God's sake. Then I held my breath to listen for her scream when she went over. I never heard it."

"But I heard something else. I heard a man's voice. It was clear and strong and high. There was death in it. I tell you, Mr. Kent, living horror gripped at the throat that gave that cry. Then there was a rush of lifted stones and gravel down the face of the cliff. That was all."

"Beyond me the ground rose. I ran up on it. It gave me a clear view of the cliff-top. I thought sure I would see the man who had cried out from there. Not a sight of him! Nothing moved in the moonlight. I thought he must have gone over the cliff, too. I threw myself down and buried my face."

"How long I lay on the ground I do not know. The wisp of smoke that blotted out the woman's star, now, and by that I knew she was dead. But the moon was shining high. It gave me light enough to see my way into the gully, and I stumbled and slid down through to the beach."

"I found her body right away. It lay with the head against a rock. But there was no sign of the man's body. The man who had yelled. So I thought perhaps he had not gone over the cliff, and I sat and waited to see if he would come and care for her. It was quite clear to me what I must do. I did not come. Perhaps my own brain was queer from the shock and the beating she had given me with her manacled wrist; but I felt that before I went away from there I must conceal the cause of her death. If it was known she was killed, they would be more likely to suspect me."

"I went back and got the rope. I got an old grating from the shore. I dragged the body into the sea and let it soak. I lashed it to the grating. I stripped the jewelry from her. But I could not take it. That would have made me a murderer."

Si Warren, who was accounted the town fool, if he could help him out. "What'll ye say?" asked Si. "I'll pay what you're worth," answered the farmer.

Si scratched his head a minute, then announced decisively: "I'll be darned if I'll work for that."

There never was anything like "GETS-IT" for corns, and there isn't anything like it now. It is the corn cure on a new prinaway on a holiday a fancier who owns some valuable specimens in a country girl—in the feeding of birds, and gave strict directions that she was to communicate with him immediately in the event of any of them showing signs of ailment.

One day he received a letter stating that a bird of which he had had great expectations as a prize winner was unwell, and from the symptoms described the fancier concluded that it was a case of roup—a very infectious trouble. Accordingly he wired to the girl:

"Isolate bird at once. Important. Home this evening."

"Where did you put the bird, Mary?" he asked as soon as he arrived.

"It's in the coal hole," said she. "Well, I got him to do it. 'Isolate bird at once, of course,'" he added.

"I didn't," replied the girl, simply. "I got him to do it. 'Isolate bird at once, of course,'" he added.

"It was all over in a twinkling!"

Well, is it hot enough for you? Ah yes, it's hot enough for me, but I could smile to beat the band, and broil and eat and melt with glee, if that old question could be canned. The sun might bane me to a crisp, and I'd be glad the long day through, if no one ever stopped to lisp: "Well, is it hot enough for you?"

Do not allow yourself to be made wakeful and nervous by rattling windows or doors when the comb on your dresser makes a perfect wedge, easily inserted and as easily removed. Especially annoying are such noises in hotels and other strange bedrooms, but even there the comb is at hand and equal to all sizes of cracks.
